

McNary Sees Gain For Sugar Pirates In Wilson Policy

Senator Shows How Failure by President to Acquire Cuban Crop Has Inflated Prices and Hurt Planters

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—President Wilson's decision not to purchase the 1920 Cuban sugar crop will cost the consumers of the country many millions of dollars, Senator McNary, of Oregon, author of the act extending government control of sugar, declared in a statement today.

Senator McNary warned that the failure of the President to carry out the plan on which the sugar legislation was based would permit "conscienceless profiteering by the speculators."

Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, declared on the floor of the Senate that Attorney General Palmer should prosecute sugar profiteers throughout the country.

Senator McNary's statement said: "The President's decision to withhold from the Sugar Equalization Board the authority to acquire the Cuban sugar crop for 1920 comes as a distinct disappointment to those who were active in legislation designed to be corrective of the present unfortunate sugar situation, which was brought about by the refusal of President Wilson to purchase raw sugar last summer when urged to do so by the Sugar Equalization Board."

To-day I received from Mario G. Menocal, President of the Cuban Republic, a cablegram which contains the information that more than half the Cuban crop remains unsold, and is an urgent plea for the United States to stabilize the Cuban sugar market, which can be done only by the Sugar Equalization Board purchasing the crop.

"I think a great blunder has been committed by not entering this market in the summer or fall of last year, and now again to hesitate will result in still further conscienceless profiteering by the speculators at the expense of the American people, who have already paid a toll of several hundred millions of dollars on account of the President's mistake."

Senate Committee Calls For Navy Award Inquiry

Daniels, Sims, Knight Among Those Who Will Testify Before Investigators

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The Senate Committee on Naval Affairs today ordered an investigation of the award of honors to officers of the American Navy, as a result of the refusal of Vice-Admiral Sims and others to accept the medals and crosses awarded to them by Secretary Daniels.

Senator Page, of Vermont, chairman of the committee, was directed to appoint a sub-committee of five to conduct the investigation. The sub-committee will cooperate with any committee appointed by the House, but will conduct an inquiry of its own if the House does not join with it. The Senate investigating committee will be named to-morrow, Senator Page said.

Secretary Daniels, Vice-Admiral Sims, Rear Admiral Knight, chairman, and other members of the Navy Award Board and officers who have refused to accept the medals and crosses awarded to them will be called to testify.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, who is friendly with Secretary Daniels, was the only member of the committee who voted against the investigation.

Would Make Pershing Chief of Army Staff

Senate Bill Being Framed to Give A. E. F. General March's Place

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Incorporation of language in the army reorganization bill, which Senate Military Subcommittee members said, would make General Pershing Chief of Staff, is under consideration by the committee, but Chairman Wadsworth said to-night that a decision had not been reached. As yet, the tentative provision would make the "general of the army" Chief of Staff.

Under a provision adopted by the committee, "the general of the army" would head a board of general officers to select officers for staff duty.

Members of the sub-committee, representatives of the War Department, National Guard and American Legion and others interested discussed the bill at a conference to-night. Senator Wadsworth said he hoped to report it to the full committee next Friday.

Woman Who Wrote Novel About Truth Is Missing

"Nataasha Navarre," Who Left West for This City, Sought by Theatrical Magnate

Somewhere in Manhattan Thomas Phillips, a California theatrical magnate, wanders disconsolately from Police Headquarters to the missing person bureau, seeking Nataasha Navarre. Mr. Phillips admits that Nataasha Navarre is a real person, although he confesses that she was not christened Nataasha Navarre but Dell Grey. Miss Grey, take Mr. Phillips's word for it, is a leading author on the West coast. She has long been celebrated, Mr. Phillips avows, under the pen name of Nataasha Navarre as a writer of sociological literature, and she has just completed a novel called "The Dawning of Truth," which has some pretty gingerly stuff in it, as Mr. Phillips reluctantly intimates.

On December 1, Mr. Phillips says, Nataasha Navarre left her native California for New York under an agreement with Phillips, who had contracted to arrange that "The Dawning of Truth" should eventually dawn on Broadway, where it was expected the novelty of anything with truth in it would go over big. On December 2, Mr. Phillips also headed for Times Square Broadway, where he was expected to arrive in due course, but Nataasha Navarre, he says, is still absent from the scene.

Edward Brush, Noted Silver Expert, Dies

Vice-President of Smelting Company Was in His Sixty-fifth Year

Edward Brush, sixty-five, vice-president of the American Smelting and Refining Company, died at his home in Greenwich, Conn., yesterday.

Mr. Brush was born in Greenwich, the son of Joseph E. and Mary Brush. He was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University in the class of 1874, and later became secretary of the Consolidated Kansas City Smelting and Refining Company, where he remained for ten years. In 1898, when the American Smelting and Refining Company was organized, Mr. Brush went with that company as secretary, and shortly afterward was appointed vice-president.

Mr. Brush was an expert on silver and lead, and in 1902 he was special ambassador of the Mexican government on a commission of American and Mexican financiers, who visited all the
